Please help end the deadly toll of Ireland's unwanted dogs

-  Since 2005, the average daily destruction rate of Ireland's unwanted dogs has dropped by 28 to 18 as more and more owners have taken responsibility for spaying or neutering their pets.
 -  While welcome, that nonetheless adds up to 6,476 dogs destroyed in 2009, a figure that still leaves us among Europe's worst offenders when it comes to disposing of unwanted dogs.
 -  If like us you believe that the destruction of even a single dog is still one too many, please play your part in ending this appalling toll by ensuring your cat or dog is neutered or spayed.
- For advice, contact your local vet, your pet's health professional, or visit www.spayweekireland.ie

Spay Week Ireland 2010 is supported by international dog welfare charity
Dogs Trust and Veterinary Ireland Companion Animal Society (VICAS).
